

Introduction to the World: Cultures

Week 31

Instead of asking your children comprehension questions after you read to them, try more open-ended questions. "What did you think of that story? What was your favorite part?" You may be surprised at what they come up with! Another fun way to find out what they remember is to have them act out the stories. They will think it's a game, but it's a good way to reinforce what they are learning.
